with Over 13 Years Directly Enforcing
EU Customs Law

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Massimo Fabio has extensive experience in the area of international trade and customs law as well as taxation. His 13 years of service in the officer corps of Italy's financial police, Guardia di Finanza, gave him extensive, direct experience enforcing the customs law of the EU. For nearly 16 years he has devoted his professional activities to addressing the practical impact of the European Union's customs legislation as well as its efforts to harmonize the tax regimes of its member states. Mr. Fabio is involved in a wide range of customs and related tax matters in his capacity as Partner with K Studio Associato, a Rome-based law firm and KPMG International correspondent. He specializes in helping multinational companies cope with harmonized EU taxation in the areas of customs, excise and VAT. In addition to his practice activities, Massimo Fabio is a sought-after lecturer in the fields of EU customs law as well as excise and VAT legislation. Mr. Fabio is also author of many publications in international taxation and trade issues.

Customs Law of the European Union is also available online.
